

BEAUTIFUL ANTLERS

Once in a beautiful jungle...

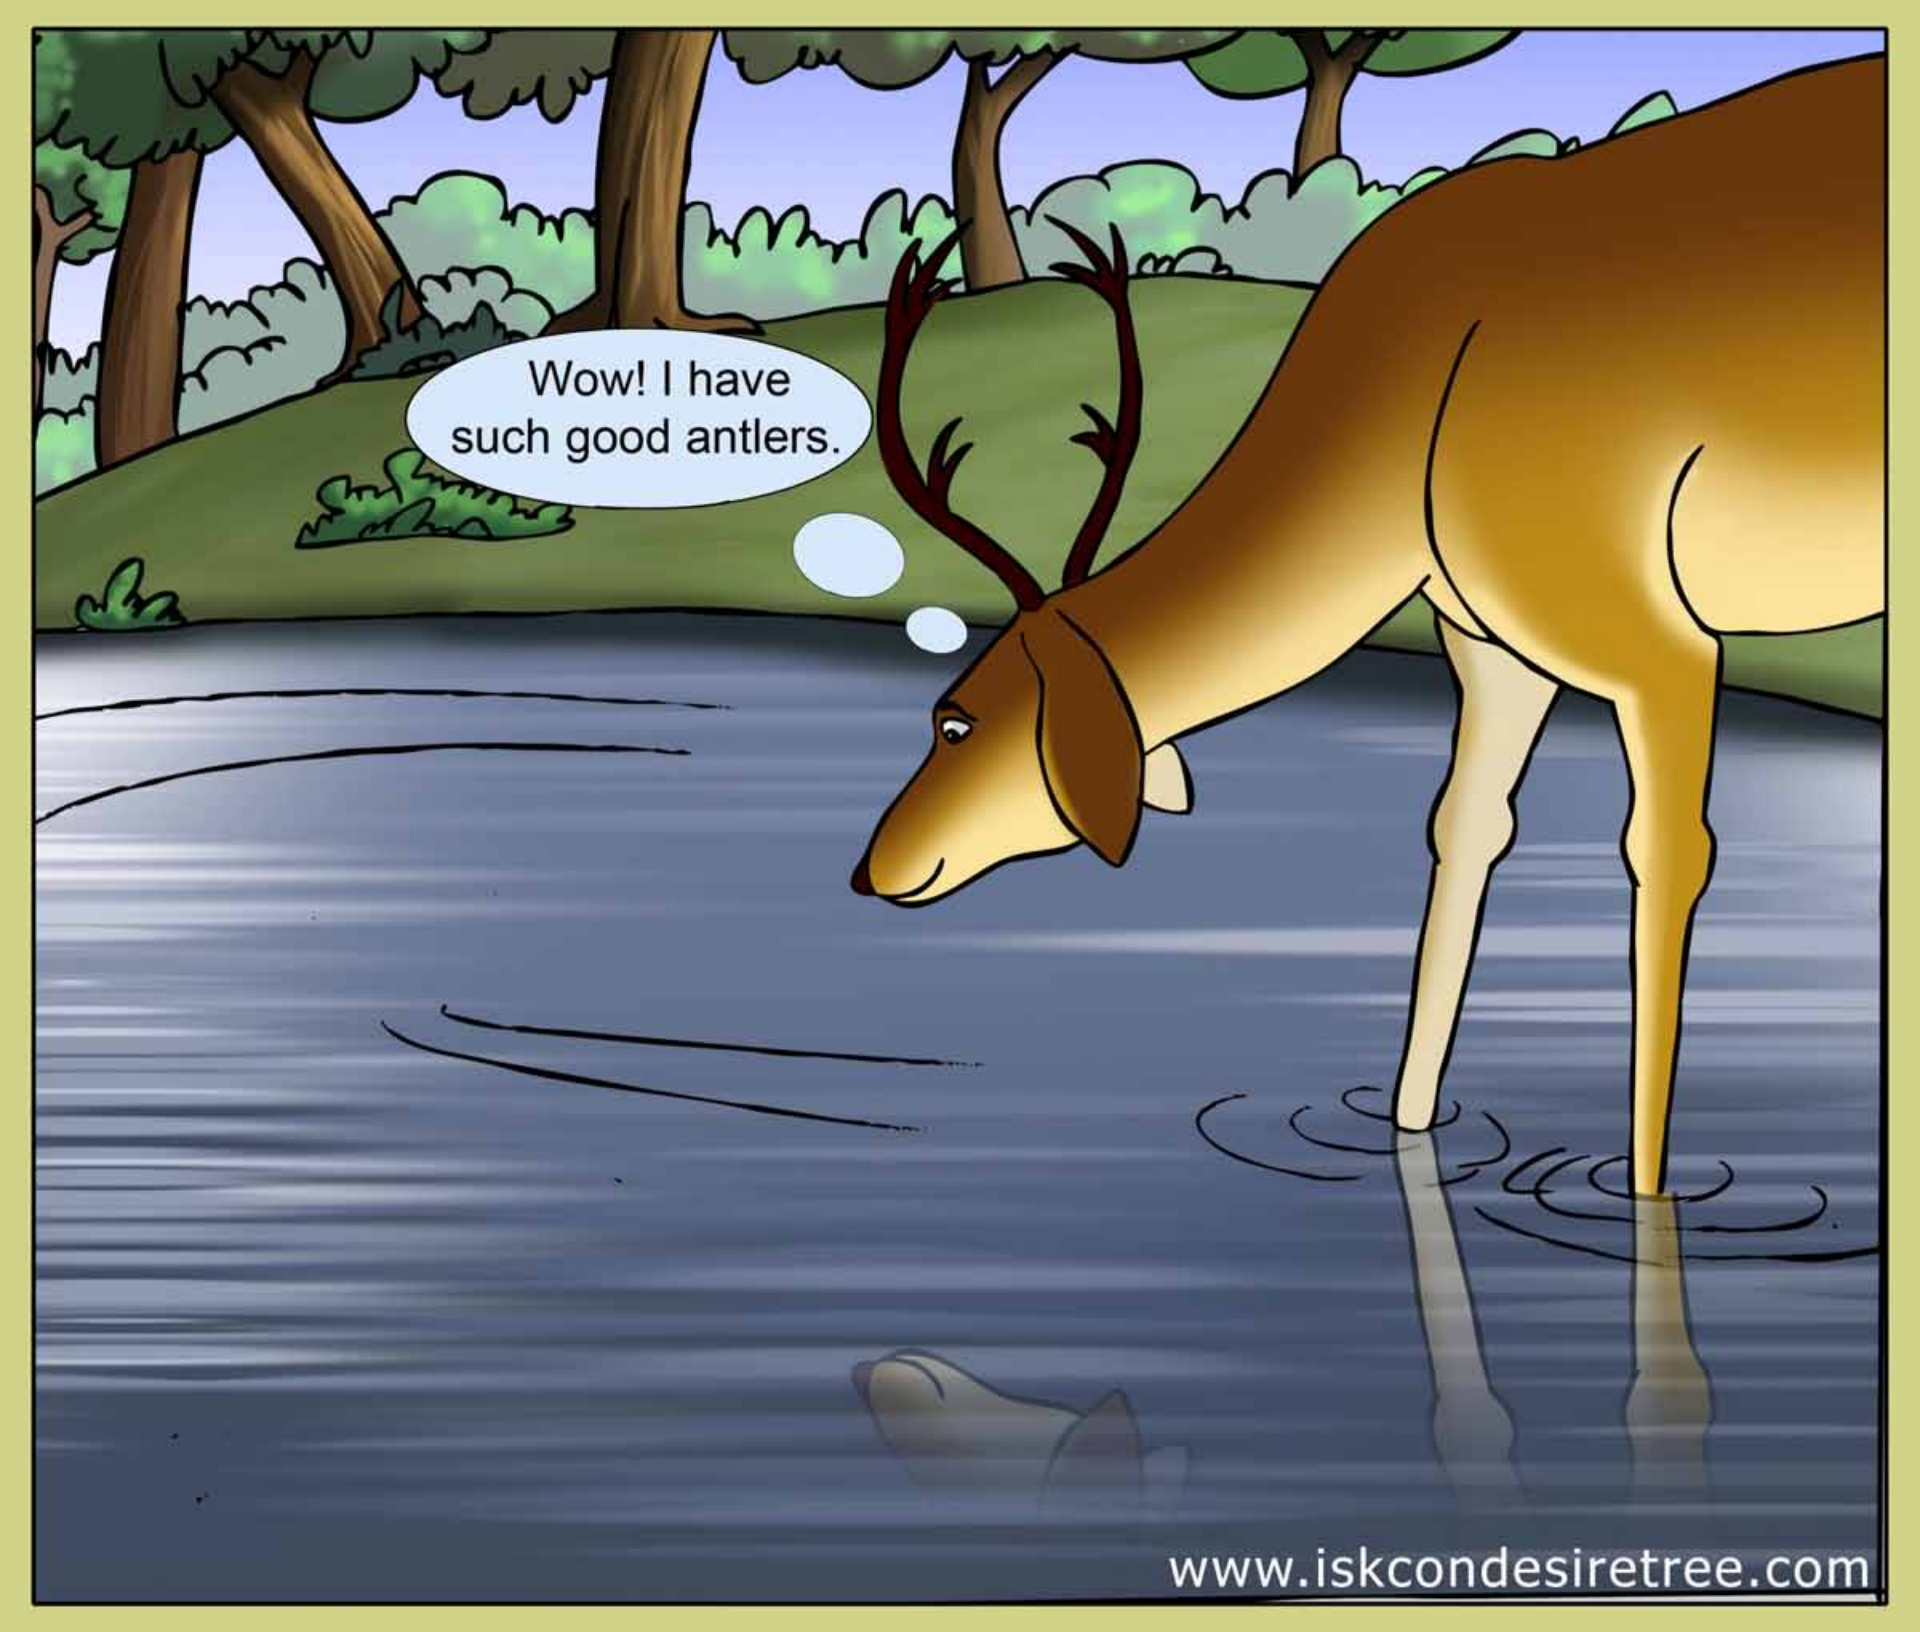

....a deer came to a pond for drinking water

In the clear water of the pond, the deer saw his own beauty.

Wow! I have such good antlers.

No animal
has such beauty.

Although my antlers are beautiful, my legs are very thin & ugly. Why has God given me such ugly legs? They just don't match the beauty of my antlers.

While he was thinking like this he saw nearby some dangerous wild dogs chasing animals.

The deer ran swiftly....

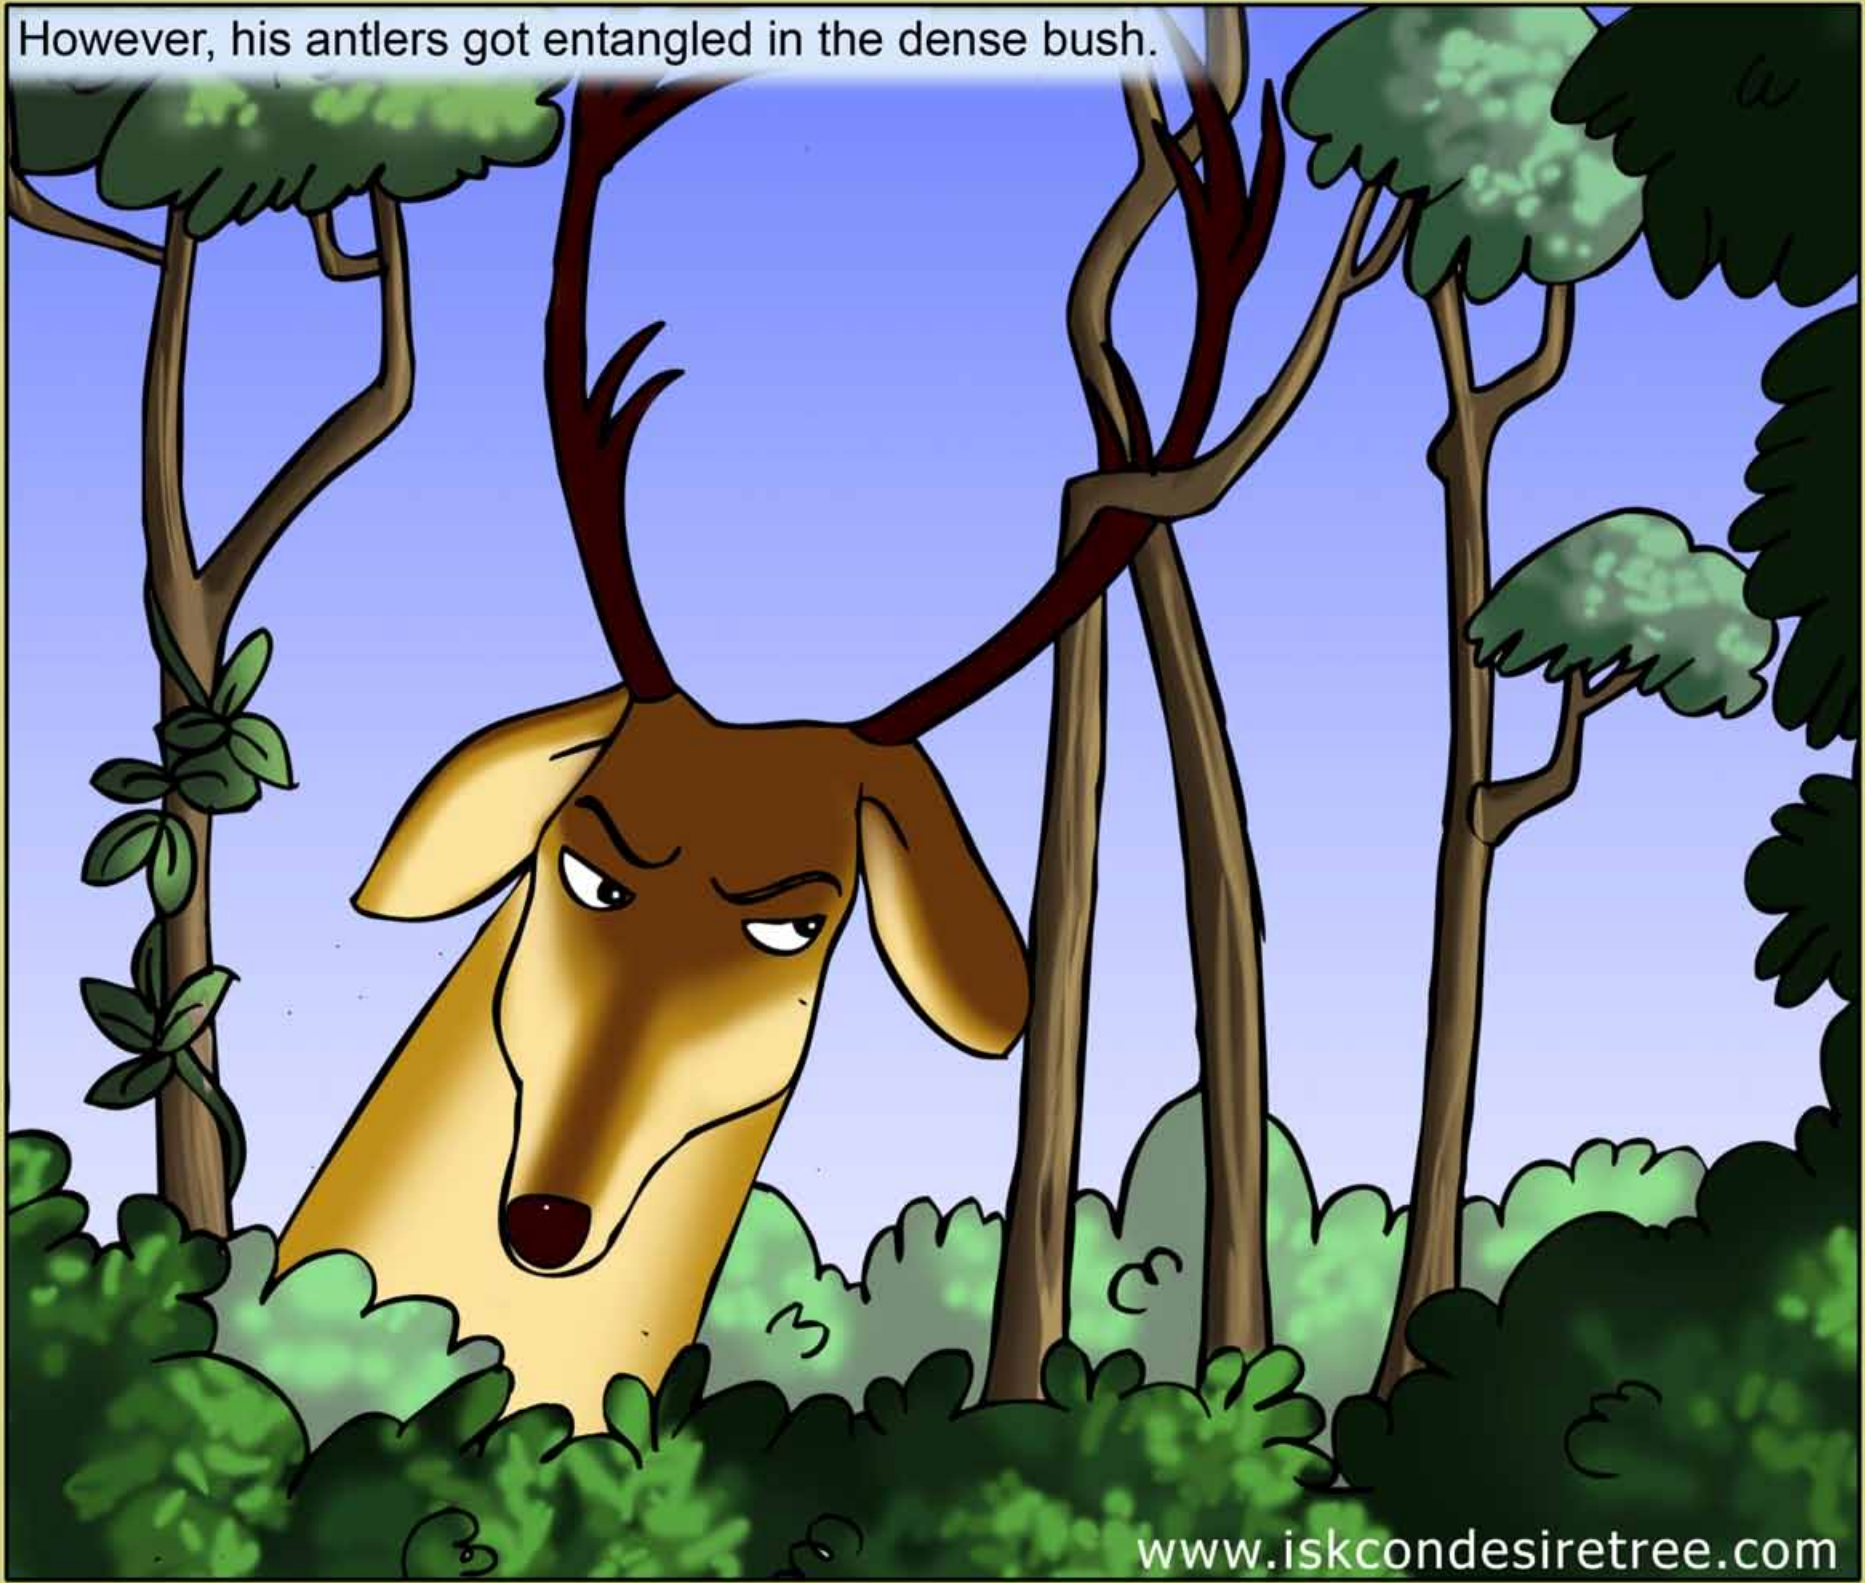

Better I
run for my life

To hide from the wild dogs, he entered a dense bush

However, his antlers got entangled in the dense bush.

Oh! My antlers have got entangled in the bush and I can't free them.

The deer could not escape. By this time the wild dogs reached and killed the trapped deer.

MORAL :

In this material world, we become proud of our assets & we blame God for what we don't have. However, it is our proud assets that traps us and entangles us in miseries of this material world. The deer was proud of his antlers and was unhappy with his legs. It was his legs that helped him to run away from danger but it was his antlers that got him trapped and lead to his ultimate sad death.
